

COMBINED CHARITIES

Student Response Low; New Deadline Dec. 1st

by Morton Perel

The Combined Charities Committee has announced that after a week of campaigning, only seven hundred dollars has been donated by students so far.

This sum represents the contributions of about a fifth of the student body. Last year at this time, over $1,600 had been donated. Heri Lafleur, chairman of the committee, attributes the poor results to apathy on behalf of the students, and a lack of drive on behalf of the 550 odd canvassers. The deadline for donations has, therefore, been extended to 4 pm on Thurs. Dec. 1.

Students are reminded that the Combined Charities objective is $5600 — about a dollar per student. The money collected is to be divided between the World University Service, and local charitable organizations of the different religious denominations.

WUS is designed to aid unprivileged students in Europe and Asia to receive university education. It has been estimated that the Canadian dollar is worth four dollars in these countries, and is sufficient to provide one student with room and board for two days.

Mr. Lafleur said that any such combined appeal whose aim is to provide the basic and fundamental privileges and means, which we ourselves take for granted, should be undertaken by the students with more responsibility. Students are urged to donate, and canvassers to make a whole-hearted effort and return their envelopes with all call cards canvassed as soon as possible.

STUDENT ELECTIONS SET FOR TOMORROW

Students go to the polls tomorrow to elect faculty representatives to the Students' Executive Council, a vice-president and resident and non-resident members to the Women's Union, and members to Scarlet Key and the Red Wing Society.

To clear up any misunderstandings on the subject, this election is campus-wide; every student at McGill may vote for a representative or representatives to SEC from his faculty; every student votes for his year's members to Scarlet Key or Red Wings; all women students vote for a Vice-President to the Women's Union, and each year votes for its resident and non-resident members to the Union.

Nominees to SEC from the faculty of Arts and Science wish to emphasize the fact that two representatives must be elected from among them.

Arts and Science

Running for election from Arts and Science are Sigmund Ein, Roy Heenan, and Ralph Ordower.

Lawrence Burpee, George Hamilton, and Dan Wainberg are contesting the position from the faculty of Engineering.

The faculty of Dentistry has nominated Ernest Burman and Phil Samis; Jerry Miller and Jacques Reeves are Architecture's contestants; Harold Ashenmil and Jim Domville seek election from Law, while the Schools of Physio-Therapy, Physical Education, and Graduate Nurses have nominated Ardice Buchanan and Marvin Johnson.

3 SEC Acclamations

Three acclamations to SEC include Harvey Sigman from Medicine, Peter Reid from Commerce and Gail Gunning, from Music and Divinity.

Joyce Benson, Rosalind Corenblum, and Janet Cross seek the position of Vice-President of the Women's Union.

Rosalind Hudson, Mary Underhill, and Jocelyn Wiley are running for the position of second or third year resident; Marion Atwell, Carol Black, Judy Heal, Lorna Houston, Heather MacMillan, Suzanne Moseley, and Bernice Thomas are competing for the office of second or third year non-resident.

Women's Union

Acclamations to the Women's Union include Harriet Miller, first year representative to the Union, and Shirley Nadell, first year representative to MWSAA.

Thirty-eight have been nominated for election to Scarlet Key, while 17 seek election to the Red Wing Society.

WRIGHT AND BINDER TO DEBATE MARXISM

"Resolved that Marxism is scientifically valid", will be the topic of the debate this Thursday night between Professor David McCord Wright and Harry Binder.

The debate will be centered around three main topics; The theory of exploitation, labour theory of surplus value, and the withering of the state. Both men have agreed to use the same texts as references in order to limit the debate to main principles instead of quibbling over minor points.

Dr. Wright

Dr. David McCord Wright, author, economist, and professor, did his undergraduate work at the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Virginia. He received his law degree, was admitted to the Georgia Bar, and then went to Harvard where he received his

M.A. and Ph.D. in economics. He has lectured at the Universities of Virginia, California, Harvard, and Oxford, and is now at McGill, where he holds The William Dow Chair in Economics.

Harry Binder

Harry Binder, a graduate of the University of Manitoba, joined the Communist Youth movement in 1929. While in Manitoba he was organizer of a trade union. During the war, he served overseas with the Regina Rifles. In 1950 Mr. Binder was elected to the Montreal City Council. He is now provincial organizer of the Labour Progressive Party and a member of the National Executive. Mr. Binder has had many years of experience in Communist and labour movements across Canada.

IMMORALITY DEBATE CONTINUES TODAY

A second Discussion group following up the Kingsbury debate on the "Immorality of God" will be held today in the common room at Divinity Hall at 1 pm. Members of the panel leading the discussion will be Mr. Lotz and Mr. Von Goudover, the latter from the school of Theology.

Last week between 30 and 40 students participated in a lively informal discussion, which was so successful that it is being continued today. An invitation is extended to all students to attend the debate under the chairmanship of Reg Hollis.

mut Blume said last night at the final Music Critics meeting of this term.

Mr. Blume was a member of a panel consisting of Thomas Archer, Alexander Brott, H. P. Bell, and Kenneth Meek. They discussed the visit of Ian Hunter, former artistic director of the Edinburgh Festival, who was invited by an Ottawa committee to investigate the possibility of such a festival in Ottawa.

Festival Needed

It was agreed that a festival is definitely needed where Canadian talent would attain national prominence. Top billing would be given each year to a different artistic group, and this could be supplemented with foreign artists.

The potential audience would be Canadian and American as few

PLANS BEING READIED FOR ON CAMPUS SERIES

Plans are now being made for a series of On Campus debates to be sponsored by the Debating Union. Special Events chairman Stuart Smith announced that Wednesday noon hours would be utilized weekly in an effort to afford an opportunity for all interested and competent McGill debaters to argue on topics of current interest.

This is the first year that such a project has been undertaken by the Debating Union. There will be two or three debates before the Christmas exams, and as many as possible after the New Year vacation.

Perfect Technique

Smith stresses that this series is designed mainly to provide the participants with a medium for practising and perfecting debating techniques. Any experienced orators who would like to participate in any of these debates are requested to contact Smith at EL 9398.

PRESS, RADIO LOSING INFLUENCE WUS SEMINAR DELEGATES AGREE

by Eric Rennert

Press and radio have declined as a means of influencing people, delegates to a regional seminar of the World University Service agreed last weekend.

McGill representatives at the meeting, held at Caladon Hills Farm, 40 miles from Toronto, were Ann Powell and Kim Kertland, of the McGill WUS Committee.

The delegates also agreed that Canadian newspapers are not giving enough coverage to international news.

Colleges Present

Seven colleges from Ontario and Quebec were represented, including students from India, Egypt, Barbados, and China. Guest speakers included Dr. D. Hugh Gillis, of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, and Tom Eberlee, of the Toronto Daily Star.

The McGill representatives played a major role in the smaller group discussions.

"The entire seminar was most stimulating," said Miss Powell, "and McGill's own WUS committee is considering holding one, thus giving local students an opportunity to discuss topics of current interest, and even more important, to meet student from other countries."

One of the highlights to the male delegates was a dip taken in an ice bath prepared by the Finnish students. Kertland, one of the frigid few, described it as a cold Turkish bath.

"The brave men first took a cold walk through a room full of steam. Then after breaking a thin layer of ice, they imitated the famous Polar Bear club by diving into the icy water. Slightly chilly, they quickly ran back into the steam room. Never again."

The director of the weekend's events was Professor David Savan, dept. of philosophy, University of Toronto.

GHOST STORY

The visit of the Governor General to 'debutize' this year's crop reminds us that we will soon be celebrating the fifth anniversary of the Massey Report. Perhaps we should have said 'mourning'. Can it be that the Report, greeted as the herald of a new era in our national life, in fact fell still-born from the King's printing press?

Many of the Report's observations still make pertinent reading. "... in this important national activity (the distribution of information about Canada in foreign countries) Canada has fallen behind other democratic countries, including some with smaller populations and much more limited resources."

"... the American Museum of Natural History employs more full-time scientists in its Insect and Spider Division alone than are employed in our National Museum as a whole."

"... probably no city in the world of comparable size is so inadequately equipped for the public performance of music as Montreal."

The most comprehensible of the Report's recommendations was the establishment of a 'Canada Council' with a threefold function. Firstly it was to stimulate and co-ordinate activity in the humanities and social sciences as the National Research Council does in the natural sciences and technical crafts. It would directly promote and encourage cultural activity (as does the successful Arts Council of Great Britain), and it would administer a system of university scholarship and loans. Secondly it would concern itself with the now neglected task of providing information on Canada to foreign countries. Thirdly it would function as a national commission for UNESCO, implementing the terms of a treaty which Canada signed a decade ago.

The Royal Commission optimistically believed that it would be "entirely feasible for the Federal Government to fulfill its duties toward our students without infringing the provisions of the Constitution." The Federal Government is determined not to offend the sensitive Province(s), at least until agreement has been reached on taxation. Until this millennium, the Report is apparently doomed, like Hamlet's ghost, to a state of suspended existence. Surely it is too valuable a ghost to be entirely exercised by the mere invocation of the magic formula 'provincial autonomy'.

THE 'KEY' REPLIES

It was interesting to read your leading article criticizing the present system of election to the Scarlet Key Society. Whether a person should be elected or appointed has been a problem which the executive of the 'Key' has been working on for the past three years.

To give you a certain amount of background: Two years ago anyone on the campus could seek election to the 'Key' on a 'faculty wide' vote provided that he could get the required number of people to nominate him. On the result of much hard work by an internal investigating committee into the system of election, the new idea of having a 'screening committee' was incorporated before the election last year. A maximum number of nominees are now permitted to run and the 'screening committee' has the power to reject anyone it does not consider to have had sufficient experience to justify his election to the Society.

This 'screening' (or rather, selection) committee puts in a great number of hours just sorting out the nominations received and cutting them down to a reasonable size. It would be completely impracticable if this, or any other committee, were settled with the responsibility of making the final decision as to who should or should not be made members of the key.

No matter how the committee were constructed (at the present time it consists of the Student Counsellor, the President and Vice-President of the Scarlet Key, and one independent representative from each of the S.E.C. and S.A.C.), it would be quite impossible to have an adequate cross-section of the campus represented. Thus the committee would have to make decisions about people they have met for a mere ten minutes — a task that is almost impossible. The result might be to turn the Key into a fraternity rather than a campus wide organization which is supposed to act primarily as the official student host of the University and it is in this respect that it is acting as an honorary society.

C. Brandon Chenault, President,
John D. Jackson, Vice-President,
Harvey H. Sigman, Immediate Past President,

Keep Up The Fight

Sir:

May I compliment you on your articles concerning the miserable squalor of Quebec prisons. They may shock the average student reader, but I can personally attest to their validity at every point.

Some months ago, a companion and I were arrested on an extremely minor charge, and taken, pending release, to the Montreal Provincial Jail I would like to tell the happenings, or some of them, of the two days I spent there.

We arrived at two pm on a Sunday afternoon. We were immediately deprived of shoes, belts, ties, jackets, and all personal belongings. Filthy, misshapen and torn slippers were shoved at us, and we were ordered into separate cells — cells that were 7 by 8 by 5. The furniture consisted of a small table bolted to the wall, and a urine soaked mattress. Filth reigned supreme.

Underground, I could see nothing through the close-set bars of the steel sliding door. Whispering to those on my immediate left or right was permitted, but conversational noises from my companion in another cell drew physical reprimand and threats of solitary confinement.

Use of the telephone, contrary to law, was prohibited. No contact whatsoever with people "on the outside" was allowed. The pleasure of a cigarette, though promised, never materialized.

"Dinner at Eight" consisted of two slices of stale bread. Incidentally, all meals that followed were of the same consistency, with mud-like coffee as the thirst consoler.

A bright light shone at all times, preventing any sleep — though this was almost impossible anyway, for despite the fact that it was near freezing, no blankets were supplied.

The rest of the story follows in a similar pattern — fingerprinting photography, and the ensuing trip — handcuffed — to another jail.

But I prefer to say this: the Daily, with persistence, can help to change this awful situation by allowing many people to see these things as they actually are. For the sake of those poor individuals who must exist under such conditions, keep up the fight.

Name withheld on request.

Congratulations

Sir:

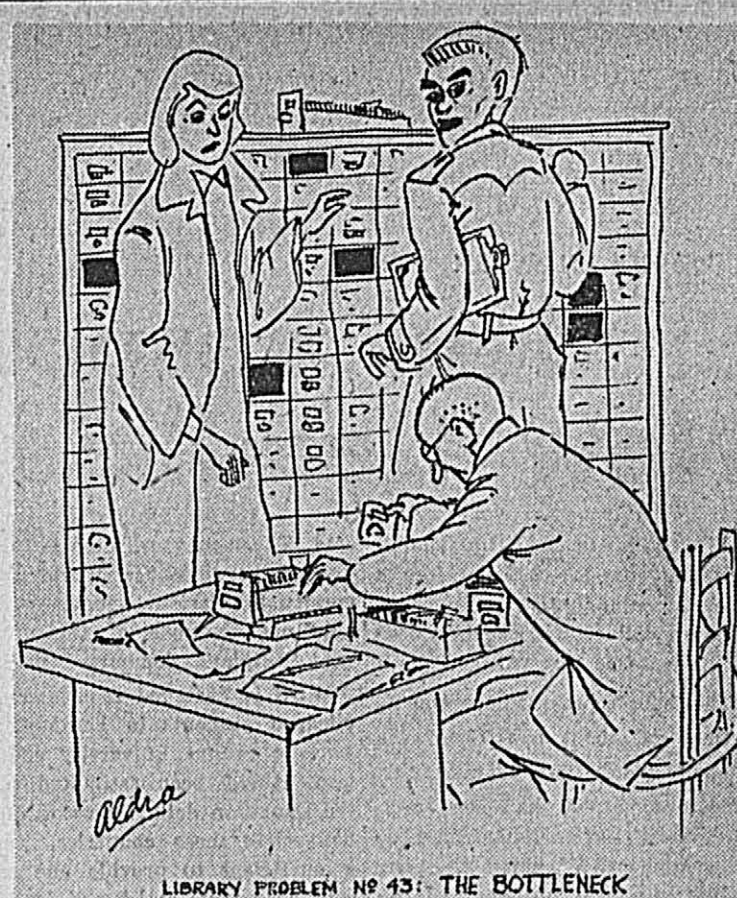

We should like to extend our wholehearted congratulations on your excellent and informative feature on the Canadian prison problem. This, we believe, is a problem of which we, like the majority of law abiding citizens, have had little or no understanding.

Without being conceited about the matter, we feel that it is the university students who will eventually be the leaders of our community. If anything is ever to be done about this and other related issues, it clearly lies in our hands.

A campus newspaper is in the position to bring such matters to the fore. Let it continue to do so!

Greater McGill

Sir:

Since Dr. James' projection regarding the establishment of the first and second year courses in Arts, Commerce, Science and Engineering at Macdonald College there have been numerous articles in the Daily. While expressing violent objections these have been in some cases informative and in other cases insulting to both Macdonald and McGill.

As a student of Agricultural Economics I am privileged to enjoy the advantages of courses at Mac and McGill and am thus somewhat familiar with the, "To be exiled . . . !" at McGill, and the, "Thank God it won't happen while I'm there . . . !" feeling which is quite strong at Mac. Both are biased. Both display ignorance.

It will interest Miss Sonia Lindsay to know that out of less than seven hundred students, Mac has no less than sixty eight Post Graduates. "Muddy feet"? Among us exists a friendly spirit of co-operation and respect.

On the other hand I had expected to find far more decorum at McGill than I did. Frankly I was shocked at the number of late starting classes, the disrespect shown to instructors and the loud-mouthed displays in the student lounges. Fortunately I spend most of my time in the friendly, active, and if I may add, extremely international environment of Macdonald College.

Nevertheless this country is growing. Universities must expand if only to remain adequate. There is plenty of room at Mac; the "Giant" is already gorged. The vast tract of land which we own out here is destined, in my opinion, to become one of the largest and

by Irwin Sankoff

Saturday was a bad day for the Red and White. The McGill Redmen lost their opening hockey game by a 5-3 count to the U of M Carabins, while the Alouettes had their colours dragged in the mud of Empire Stadium as the Eskos won the Grey Cup clobbering the Als. The Carabins were nearly full value for their win on Saturday night at the Verdun Auditorium, but some bush league work by the officials made the loss all the harder to bear.

The first indication of things to come happened before the game even started. As the referee blew his whistle to signal the goal judges to try the red lights prior to the game, it was discovered that there was no goal judge at one end of the rink. Then there followed a period of several minutes while the refs. searched for an impartial judge. For a moment it seemed as though one of the ushers would be delegated to do the task.

Finally our hero appeared on the scene and the game started. U of M as usual went out and started throwing their weight around trying to plaster Redmen all over the boards, but the Redmen drew first blood as they banged in two goals. Things really started rolling in the second period and it began to look as though the officials were merely out for a skate. On one power-play two Redmen in a row knocked the puck down with sticks over their shoulder, but drew nary a tweet from the ref's whistle.

Then, when U of M players tried the same thing seconds later, the ref evened up the count by glancing the other way. Finally at one point Gord Currie pulled the trigger on a screen shot from about 20 feet out, the puck hit Guevremont in the U of M nets as he was going down, rebounded off the post and just dribbled across the line. Guevremont reached out a big gloved mit and pulled the puck off the net as three Carabins covered up the crime by piling onto the goaler.

The red light failed to go on and Currie nearly hit the arched roof of the Auditorium as he raced in to tell the goal judge a thing or two. The goal judge shrugged, his shoulders and that was that. Later some U of M fans themselves, who had a good view, claimed that the puck was in, but that McMullan was in the crease and the goal didn't count anyway. In any case the goal judge definitely should have signaled the goal and left the decision on the play to the referee.

In the third period Currie found himself in the clear as he raced in on the Carabin cage, but on his wrong wing. As he tried to swerve for a better shot a Montreal defencemen pokechecked the puck off his stick, and just for good measure applied the law of the lever between Gordie's skates dumping him unceremoniously on the ice. The official pointed to the offending player to designate a penalty but forgot to blow his whistle and the Carabins moved down the ice to score. Both coach Rocky Robillard and Currie nearly went into fits when the goal counted.

Another glaring error which went unnoticed caused an injury to Brian McMullan. McMullan was kneed quite deliberately by a U of M player, but no penalty was given even though the referee was right on top of the play. The rule-book distinctly calls for a penalty for any check using the knee. McMullan missed the rest of the game and may be out for a while with the charleyhorse.

Double Duty Prescription

Till a few years ago, customers at the Bank of England could help themselves from a bottle of cholera 'mixture' which the bank kept on hand near the entrance. It all started with a Dr. Alfred Smea, the bank's Medical Officer in 1850, who made up the original prescription. The doctor was also the perpetrator of the bank's ink which, though not quite the same thing, was near enough to cause confusion. The formula appeared to consist of equal parts of soot, vinegar and glue. To get rid of the "fur", the bank's pens had to be agitated in bowls containing lead shot.

You'll find neither cholera mixture nor Smea's ink at any branch of the Royal Bank, but you WILL encounter a few things of a more useful nature. Like Savings Accounts, Money Orders, Travellers Cheques and so on. Another thing you'll find is friendly, helpful service. There are six Royal Bank branches near McGill — Peel & Sherbrooke, St. Catherine & McGill College, St. Catherine & Stanley, Sherbrooke & Bleury, Sherbrooke & Guy, and Sherbrooke & Fort. The Royal Bank of Canada.

CONFERENCE PLANS SAFETY CAMPAIGN

In an effort to cut down on the large number of traffic accidents occurring across the country, the Canadian Highway Safety Conference has announced a Safe-Driver Day to be held this Thursday.

W. M. V. Ash, chairman of the Conference, in making the announcement, cited some statistics to show the need for a cross-country safety campaign. He stated that on a per capita basis, Canadian casualty figures are 30 percent worse than those of the United States, with one death every hour and one injury every six minutes.

This drive will coincide with that in the United States and, it is hoped, will result in a large cut in the number of traffic casualties in Canada.

The value of a university life hinges about our association with our fellows, from the greenest undergrad to the most advanced grads. I agree fully with Miss Lindsay that these ought not to be separated. Furthermore I would advocate a stronger inter-relationship of faculties. Agriculture could derive much from a closer association with Arts and Commerce. Arts and Commerce could certainly learn a great deal from "us farmers"!

I would hope that Dr. James' proposal to move the first two years only is primarily due to a
